10 November 2009
subject to modification without notice

oneworld has teamed up with selected airlines who are not members of the alliance to bring you Global Explorer fares – more destinations, more corners of the world to see, more great value for your clients. Your Round the World itinerary could include a South Pacific island, some of the great cities of Europe, North and South America, Africa and Asia.

How Global Explorer works:

You can choose from four Tiers that determine your fare, based on total distance flown.

Tier 1: Up to 26,000 miles (Available in Economy Class only)

Tier 2: Up to 29,000 miles (Available in Economy Class only)

Tier 3: Up to 34,000 miles (Fares offered in Economy, Business or First Class)

Tier 4: Up to 39,000 miles (Available in Economy Class only)

You may fly up to 16 flight segments on your trip. Travel between two points by surface transportation will count as one flight segment.

Fares and conditions shown are valid for departures from Switzerland, and do not include taxes and applicable agency fees. ## Routing

Flights must be via both the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans (travelling around the world in an eastbound or westbound direction). You may only cross each ocean once.

Your flights from one continent to another must be in a continuous eastward or westward direction. Once within a continent you are free to backtrack or roam locally provided you do not return to the point where your journey originated.

You may travel by surface transport instead of flying:

1. Between the USA and Canada
2. Within Australia
3. Between Hong Kong and another point in the People's Republic of China

4. Within South America
5. Within Africa
6. Between Bangladesh and Bangkok or Singapore
7. Between Malaysia and Singapore

If you choose to travel by surface transport, the most direct flown distance between the origin and destination point of the surface segment will be counted towards your total flown mileage
